Gregorian Latin Liturgy

Until 1969, the various Catholic liturgies were all of apostolic origin. The Gregorian Latin liturgy, celebrated in this church, follows the tradition of Saint Peter, the first Pope, and has never undergone any essential change till the present time. Every gesture, every word has been weighed and measured with the assistance of the Holy Ghost for the greatest glory of God and the salvation of souls.

Housekeeping & Reminders

For parents with little ones who bring the occasional holy interruption, Mass is also streamed in the portable. You're welcome to make use of the space as needed.

"I urge you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, to offer your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and pleasing to God, your spiritual worship." Rm 12:1

Out of respect for Our Lord Jesus Christ and for the edification of our neighbor, we beg all to appear in Church decent in deportment and modest in dress.

However, no one has the right to question others, especially visitors. It belongs to the parish priest alone to instruct the laity when they repeatedly dress or deport below expectation.

Thank you for your charity.

For gentlemen and lads: Neither shorts, T-shirts nor sneakers meet the norms of modesty.

For ladies and girls: Neither shorts, slacks, sleeveless, short nor low-cut dresses meet the norms of modesty.

Furthermore, according to apostolic custom or Church law, gentlemen are bareheaded in church, and ladies are requested to cover their heads.

Sanctuary Lamp Intention

This week's sanctuary lamp is dedicated in memory of Mamie Bucca.

Please contact info@stmichaelcatholic.org if you are interested in dedicating the Sanctuary Lamp for a special intention. Donations for the 8-day candle are $20.00.

ON THE PREDOMINANT PASSION

"For he was at the point of death. Lord, come down before that my son die." JOHN iv. 47, 49.
SERMONS OF ST. ALPHONSUS

OUR passions are not of themselves bad nor hurtful, when regulated according to the dictates of reason and prudence, they do us no injury, but are, on the contrary, profitable to the soul; but, when disorderly, they are productive of irreparable mischief to those who obey them; for, when any passion takes possession of the heart, it obscures the truth, and makes the soul incapable of distinguishing between good and evil. Let us, then, be careful not to allow any bad passion to rule over us. In John 4, 46-53, it is related that A certain ruler, whose son was at the point of death, knowing that Jesus Christ had come into Galilee, went in search of him, and entreated him to come and cure his son. "Come down before that my son die." (John iv, 49) The same may be said of him who begins to submit to the tyranny of any passion. "He is at the point of death" of the soul, which should be dreaded far more than the death of the body. Hence, if he wishes to preserve spiritual life, he ought to ask the Lord to deliver him as soon as possible from that passion; Lord, come down before my soul die—if he does not ask the Lord, he shall be miserably lost.

"Only this," said Solomon, "I found, that God made man right, and he hath entangled himself with an infinity of questions." (Eccl. vii. 30.) and by giving ear to the serpent, man exposed himself to temptations, and was conquered. He rebelled against God, and his passions rebelled against himself. These are the passions which, according to St. Paul, cause a continual war between the flesh and the spirit. "For the flesh lusteth against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh." (Gal. v. 17.) However, with the aid of divine grace, it is in man's power to resist these passions, and not to allow them to rule over him. "But the lust thereof shall be under thee, and thou shalt have dominion over it." (Gen. iv. 7.) Let the assaults of the flesh and of the devil, to make us abandon the way of God, be ever so violent, Jesus Christ has said: "Lo! the kingdom of God is within you." (Luke xvii. 21.) Within us he has established a kingdom, in which the will is the queen that ought to rule over all the senses and passions.

Of what use, then, says St. Jerome, is it to abstain from food, and at the same time to allow the mind to swell with pride? or to abstain from wine, and to indulge in the drunkenness of anger? Christians who act in this manner do not lay aside their vices; they only cover them with the mantle of devotion. A man, then, must divest himself of all bad passions; otherwise he will not be the king, but the slave of his affections, and sin shall reign in his heart. "Let not sin, therefore, reign in your mortal body, so as to obey the lusts thereof." (Rom. vi. 12.) Man, then, is, as St. Thomas says, the king of himself when he regulates his body and his carnal affections according to reason. According to St. Jerome, "when the soul serves vice she loses the honour of a kingdom." (In Thren., ii. 7.) St. Augustine writes, that two cities may be built up in the heart of a Christian; one by the love of God, the other by self-love. Thus, if the love of God reign within us, we will despise ourselves: if self-love reign, we will despise God. But, in conquering self-love consists the victory to which shall be given a crown of eternal glory.

Reasoning and reflections are then of little use; for passion obscures our faculties; and the more we reflect the more delightful the object of passion appears. Hence, there is no other remedy than to have recourse to Jesus and to most holy Mary, saying with tears and sighs: "Lord, save us, or we perish: do not permit us to be ever separated from thee. "We fly to thy protection, holy mother of God." O souls created to love God, let us raise ourselves above the earth; let us endeavour with all our strength to love the Supreme Infinite Good, our most amiable God, who has made us for himself, and expects us in heaven to make us happy, and to make us enjoy the very glory which he enjoys for eternity.
